VOL. 14, NUMBER 41 MONESSEN, PA., SATURDAY, JULY 31, 1915 SIX CENTS THE WEEK

Sands' Regimental Band Gave Two Good Concerts

Sands' Regimental Band gave two full concerts in the afternoon and evening at the local Chautauqua tent to record breaking crowds and it is certain that no entertainment of the course made a stronger appeal to the popular taste than these concerts. Each and every number was loudly applauded and encores were readily given by Mr. Sands.

During the intermission at the two sessions Superintendent H. B. Richardson, who has made a place for himself in the hearts of the Monessen people made an appeal to the audiences in behalf of the return of the Chautauqua next year. He asked for an expression from those present as to their wishes in having the Chautauqua return and although it was far from unanimous it is thought that by special effort under the new arrangement this popular week of entertainment will again return.

The local guarantors, of which they are 200, were compelled to make up a deficit of $800 this year and it proved too much of a burden for these men. An effort will be made to secure more guarantors this year and with the guarantee reduced to $1,500 the chances are more brighter for a return engagement. The uplift of the community by this educational week is almost a necessity. The good derived from the week remains with many for a long time. It assists the children, it advances ideas and puts forth the important questions that confronts the public of the day and shows the best manner in which to solve them. Monessen people will not be satisfied with a cheaper class of entertainment during the week but with less numbers especially during the day when the working man is forced to miss the majority of them it is thought that the expense can be reduced without hurting the talent.

The program of the Regimental Band both afternoon and evening was as follows:

"Zampa," "Prince Albert March," a sornet solo by Frank Todhunter, popular melodies, "Sextette From Lucia," "The Dance of the Hours," "I'm on My Way to Dublin Bay," "A Day on a Southern Plantation," and a harp solo, "Attila."

The evening program: "Spanish Suite LaFeria," followed by a xylophone solo by William Eley; also two encores; "The Forge and Forest," Anvil Chorus, Les Millions D' Arlequin "Fairest and Fair." The main feature of the program was the playing of "Tipperary" in the different styles, that made a hit with the large audience. The finale was the playing of all the national airs.

The program for today is as follows:

Afternoon—Musical Prelude, The Haydn Quartette.
Entertainment—"Trained Birds and Other Animals," Pamahasika.

Evening—Musical Prelude by the Haydn Quartette.
Lecture—"The Martyrdom of Belguim," Hon. Chas. F. Scott.

The program for tomorrow is as follows:

Afternoon — Sacred Concert, The Weber Male Quartette.
Sermon — "The Tyranny of the Truth," Rev. Edward F. Daugherty.
7:00 p. m. —Vesper Service.
Evening—Sacred Concert, The Weber Male Quartette.
Address—"Popular Fallacies," Dr. Ernest Wray Oneal.

No admission will be charged, but a free will offering will be taken, and the Management asks that it be a generous one.

The 10th capter of "The Diamond From the Sky," at the Olympic today. Never in the history of the moving picture world has any picture with more thrills and exciting scenes—The diamond slips from the man, the man slips and falls from his running horse and while ready to grasp the diamond faces a terrible rattle snake hissing at him and guards the diamond.

New Records

Manager Thomas Laforte of the American Talking Machine company, announces two new double disc records that will meet with the approval of the local public. One is No. 1780 with "Those Charley Chaplin Feet" and "If You Can't Get a Girl in the Summer Time." The other is No. 1783 with "Are You the O'Reilly" and "Norway." Both of these records sell for 65c. You are invited to hear them at the American Talking Machine Parlor at 249 Schoonmaker avenue. 38

Young Lads Are Again In Lockup

Gearge Hazzard and Joe Young, age 9 and 10 years respectfully, and recognized as the leaders of Monessen's band of juvenile thieves, are in the lockup again. They have confessed that they stole a bunch of keys and several base ball gloves from the Chautauqua tent several days ago. Entering the tent they took the keys from a post and made the rounds of the trunks trying to open them. Fortunately the keys were for the Iowa school building and the young thieves were forced to leave without securing any loot from the trunks. They discovered the gloves as they departed and angered because their visit was not more successful took them and threw them away.

Suspicion was at once turned to the two lads whose escapades the past three months have rivaled some of the noted crooks of the country and they were arrested, later admitting their crime and returning the gloves. The keys were thrown away and unless found will cause quite a little trouble as new locks must be placed on all doors in the school building.

The same old situation exists with the boys in jail, neither the parents nor the person who has been robbed wishing to make information and it is probable the boys will be set free again. Both are incorrigibles and as long as they are allowed their freedom following their escapades they will continue to commit crimes.

Jewish Cemetery To Be Consecrated

The Jewis people of Monessen and in fact the entire Monongahela valley will on Sunday afternoon, August 8th, take part in interesting ceremonies given in connection with the consecration or "gaeder" of the new cemetery established by the Knesseth Israel congregation. The exercises will begin promptly at 1:30 and autos will convey the visitors to and from the grounds.

The cemetery in which will be interred the Jewish dead is located about two miles from Monessen and is beautifully located as a burial ground.

The ceremonies will be in charge of Rev. Levendorf, of the Monessen Rabbi, and Alfred Tanzer will also make a brief address. The dedication arrangements are being made by a committe consisting of Mr. H. Weinberger of Monessen and Thos. Weinberger of Pricedale.

Picnic At Oakland

Superintendent John Hughes and John Moeller, those "two Johns" noted for their hustle in the Shepler Mission Sunday School are planning for a great day on August 10th. On this date the school will hold its first annual picnic, and they have selected for the place the new park recently opened on the line of the Charleroi-Bentleyville street car line known as Oakland Park. The park promises to become very popular and the officers of the school hope that many Monessen people will decide to join them on that day.

A long list of sports will feaure the day, with many choice prizes, some of which were donated by the Monessen business men.

Special cars will be run and the fare will be as follows: Adults, 30 cents; children under 12, 15 cents, round trip.

Local Men Victims Of Bad Accident

Tony Dent, age 40 and Juan Piciare age 35, both of this city were among the eleven persons who were instantly killed when a coal train dashed into a P. & L. E. track gang at work near the Patterson mine of the United Coal Company near West Elizabeth. Eighteen other members of the gang were also seriously injured and are now in the McKeesport hospital while six others after having been attended by physicians at the mine left for their homes.

The accident was caused by a coupling pin on a long string of loaded coal cars breaking and allowing them to come down a hillside of 800 feet at a terrific speed finaly jumping the rails, leaving the tipple and shooting a distance of 50 feet to the P. & L. E. tracks below. A number of the men at work on the tracks were pinned to the ground by the heavy cars while others were struck by tons of coal which flew through the air. The agonized cries of the dying and wounded made the place a very bedlam and to those were soon added the cries and loud piercing moans that are so characteristic of the foreigner of the mining towns in sorrow. Only two of the mine men were killed, they being Samuel P. Daugherty, the Superintendent and Gabriel Johnson.

Horse Ran Away

For the Third time within twenty-four hours a horse belonging to the American Express company ran off this morning. The horse which had only been in use here one week took fright at an auto truck at the Express office and despite the fact that it was hitched to a heavy weight started up the street with a load of express. At the corner of Seventh and Donner it collided with the auto truck of the Miller Transfer company and the wagon was overturned on its side. The front spring was broken but the truck and express was not damaged. Agent Reagen will have the animal, which is not broke for city use, transferred to some other town.

Shadyside Ball Players Win From Sunnyside Team

The annual ball game between the Sunnyside and Shadyside of Donner avenue was played yesterday afternoon at the page grounds before a small but enthusiastic crowd. The game was interesting from the time Umpire George Myford announced the batteries until the last man was put out in the ninth inning and the Shadyside team was declared victors by a score of 8 to 5.

The Shadyside team secured a 4 run lead in the third inning following numerous errors and scratch hitting and up until the seventh inning the score remained 5 to 1 in their favor. In the seventh Shepler for the Sunnysides, started the rally with a healthy clout that did not end until four runners had crossed the pan, tying the score. The Shadyside boys came back in the last half of the eighth inning and "put the game on ice" with a three run lead.

H. Dallas McCabe, second baseman for the Shadyside team was compelled to retire from the game in the fourth inning with a sprained tendon. Councilman Hood gave up his position at first base to Officer Menefee, who distinguished himself both behind the bat and at the plate. Hendrickson and Kiseda the local battery for the Slovak team worked for the Shadyside team with Carnes of the Motz Lumber company on the mound for the Sunnyside.

Kisseda had an opportunity to prove a hero in the first inning when he came to bat with three on bases but the best he could do was to fan the air three successive times. Helzelsouer, with all his weight, electrified the crowd with fast base running, heavy-hitting and the manner in which he covered first base.

Following are the members of both teams:

Sunnyside	Position	Shadyside
Daly	Center Field	Sullivan
Moore	Second	McCabe
Bolig	Third	Vaughn
Derby	Short Stop	Campbell
Hood	First Base	Helzelsouer
Menefee	Cather	Kiseda
Carnes	Pitcher	Hendrickson

Substitutes, Duvall, Martz and Steckman.

Shot Accidently

Mrs. Catherine Cain, age 74, of Monongahela was mysteriously shot last evening and was removed to the Memorial hospital today, where physicians will attempt to remove the bullet which entered her leg. Mrs. Cain was sitting on the porch of her daughter's home, Mrs. George Weiss of East Main street when the accident happened. It is thought that the bullet came from across the creek where a number of boys have been in the habit of shooting with rifles.

The Broken Coin

A Story of Mystery and Adventure

By EMERSON HOUGH

From the Scenario by Grace Cunard

(Copyright, 1915, by Wright A. Patterson)

"Your majesty," exclaimed the astute nobleman, now advancing and offering his hand, 'forgive me! I was in fault today in my conduct toward your majesty. 'Twas but a mad jest of my own. Give me but opportunity to prove my loyalty to your person and our country, and you shall not find me lacking The people are about us—yes, it is true—there is danger of revolt, of revolution I shall not attempt to deny that, but give me leave to handle them, your majesty, and I promise you safety I promise you to send them away.

"Come to Me Tomorrow at My Hunting Lodge."

"You are indeed my friend after all, Count Frederick!" exclaimed Michael "What you counsel seems wise Use your own discretion, but disperse them—disperse them."

Count Frederick, hastened to address the people, who now halted, uncertain as to what move next to make. His own agents had been among the people, and had made known his own plans. Yet here was their master, evidently, for some reason, disinclined to give the word for actual outbreak, and now counseling calm consideration, dispersal.

"My good people," began he, as he stood at the head of the great stairway above them—"his majesty thanks you for the honor you have done him in coming out upon this occasion He himself has found great pleasure in coming here to meet you tonight, although he arose from a sick bed to do so. He wishes you to be calm in these stirring days. He has planned this great ball in order that you might see the equanimity of his own soul in these events, so difficult alike for a king and his people to endure. Therefore, remain loyal to your king, whom I represent before you The ballroom soon will be cleared Let the streets also be cleared. Go to your homes Wait, and depend on us who have your true welfare at heart."

There surged up to him now the figures of more than one man, some in uniform, from places in the throng, in the street. "What is it—what is wrong—why do we not have the order to march on the palace? they demanded eagerly.

"All's wrong," whispered the Count them. "For some reason, best known to himself, the king is not drunk tonight, but sober. His people are not turned against him—on the contrary, they seem to respect him more than they have done for months—there would be division among them if we started a new revolt now.

"Here, take this gold, my friends," he added, and stripped himself of some considerable sums he had brought with him. "It is all I have Give it to those who need it most Take them away from here let them go to the drinking places See that these places are filled now, and that the toast shall be Long live King Michael!"

"We may not yet cry 'Long live King Frederick!'"

The nobleman shook his head Not yet," said he "They still shall cry 'Long live King Michael.' That will do for the time at least"

Count Frederick returned through the great entryway and reported King Michael where he stood "Your majesty," said he, "your people are returning to their homes"

"Frederick, my friend, my savior!" The weak king, his features working, grasped the hands of the stronger man. "You tell me they will disperse?"

"Even now they do so, your majesty."

Kitty, by this time somewhat forgotten in the king's vacillating mind, stood looking from one to the other of these two. As she read the situation, it carried something of defeat to her An instant ago she herself had dominated the scene. Otherwise now, for Count Frederick gave her a somewhat sarcastic smile It was the time of his triumph and of her discomfiture.

"Mademoiselle is distrait?" said he "She is not dancing—she will return to her hotel, perhaps? What can one do for mademoiselle?"

Kitty turned toward him calmly. "If I might ask one of you gentlemen to secure my car for me?" Count Frederick smiled and bowed as he turned away

But Kitty was not so soon to leave the great salon of the palace that night She passed toward the entrance slowly, caught in the crush and confusion of others who were crowding out in the fiasco of the much vaunted black and white ball. For the time, she found herself in the shelter of a great column, where she was willing enough to pause. As she halted here she heard voices just behind her—one deep voice, which it seemed to her she had surely heard before.

"It is a pity that the affair did not come off tonight, your excellency," she heard another whisper hoarsely "We have everything in our own hands now I have all the plans of the fortifications, the maps of the avenues, the specifications for each street crossing It would have been entirely simple for the army of Grahoffen to march through this ramshackle city as it liked."

"Yes!" broke in the deep voice which haunted Kitty's memory, "I suppose so, but what would we do if we could not pay our troops the next day? How much better off than Gretzhoffen would then be our own case? No, Frederick is right in his main plan. The throne alone is worth nothing—it is worthless in his kingdom or in our kingdom, or in any other—a poverty-stricken kingship is no business for any man. Why have you not a diagram of the treasure's burial place—with that, now, the matter would be somewhat different tonight."

"Hush!" she heard the other voice whisper. Apparently warned, at least, by their suspicions, they moved away, although Kitty shifted her own position so that her presence was not known.

Was it Count Sachio's voice she had heard—was he, the king's friend, Count Frederick's friend the worst traitor of all, and was he also plotting for the restoration of the two lost bits of Gretzhoffen coin?

"Which way should she turn now? To Frederick? Impossible To Michael? Equally impossible.

The two men whose talk she had overheard passed now from behind the pillar toward the interior of the palace. Apparently they were known there and welcome, for surely they were not stopped by any of the king's guards or chamberlains, and Kitty herself, equally well identified, passed readily just behind them.

Kitty needed but one glance at the man she trailed to see it was indeed Count Sachio whose voice she heard

The men passed now to a little room at one side of the main hall, which traversed that portion of the palace. A window and a door, both lightly curtained, opened from the hall within Kitty, as she drew up, could see them now—Sachio, and one whose identity she did not know

"Listen now," she heard Count Sachio's voice boom out, since here they felt themselves quite safe from intrusion; "listen, while I tell you what is the real key to all these matters. It is this document, bearing on the missing treasure of old King Michael He died rich, but like a miser, he hid his gold He left a clue, yes—I have told you all of that. That clue was the broken coin

"That coin was the same as a deed in the old days. All transfers of realty, as you remember, were made on parchment, written in pen, and the parchment always was cut in two pieces on a waving line. The seller kept half the parchment, the buyer the other half. And always it ran 'This indenture witnesseth' The 'indenture' was the waving line which divided the parchment, and the parchment was proof of the transaction, so each holder held half the proof.

Now this indenture of the broken coin of Gretzhoffen witnessed that Michael the First had transferred to his people his treasure—their treasure—he kept half the deed for himself, or for the man who was to stand for himself In some way he meant to give the people the other half—that is to say, the other half of the indenture went somewhere, no one to this day can guess where—except myself"

These papers of old told of the torture chamber somewhere under the fort. Our maps cover that, but they do not mark the spot of the treasure's hiding. Only the old coin restored, indenture to indenture—the one half to the other—ever can settle that.

"Now, look here, my friend," Count Sachio held up before him a little object, which caused Kitty to start where she stood

It was the king's coin! Yes, there was the half coin which she with her own hands had sent for delivery to the king on the dancing floor at mid night that night—and Count Sachio by means which he only knew, had been the thief! It now was plain to her Here was one more claimant for the treasure of the dead king of Gretzhoffen.

Count Sachio went on. 'This is one-half only of the coin Alone, it does not serve I know well enough where lies the other half. Within the next twenty-four hours I will have it—I will have both halves within my own hands. Then, my friend, we shall see what we shall see! Events will happen which will surprise this part of the world, at least.

"Come to me tomorrow at my hunting lodge in the forest at the edge of the neutral lands That is the rendezvous of the other half of the coin I shall seek a messenger to secure it. I know well enough how Have our men there, for I, Count Sachio, will be prepared to show them all the reading of a riddle which has puzzled both these kingdoms for so long"

Had Kitty remained a moment or so longer she might have seen what the conspirators themselves, anxious as they were, did not see The face of a strange man peered in at the window of the room which they occupied. He, too, could see now all that Kitty had seen, although he had not been noticed by the latter at the time of her departure.

The grand salon by this time was well cleared, and Kitty made her way rapidly toward the main exit. Suddenly she found herself face to face with a little group made up of the king and notables of his court They too, for a time had been absent from the grand salon—apparently for a certain purpose. King Michael now did not lack the stimulus of wine "Our fair young American again!" he exclaimed, as he came. "What, mademoiselle has not even yet departed'

'It is my fault, your majesty," said Count Frederick "I promised to secure for her a car, but for the time I lost sight of her The confusion has been so great that it has been difficult to find service of the usual sort"

An attendant of the palace escorted her to her car—willing enough to conclude the events of the day.

"Tomorrow," said she to herself, as at length she composed herself for a brief slumber—"tomorrow I must be at the hunting lodge of Count Sachio once more!"

CHAPTER XVI.

Another Seeks the Coin.

Debarred by his own station in life from participating in any such action as the state ball, Rudolph Roleau had contented himself that he might be by remaining at the Louvre until the return of his mistress By morning, as soon as he got word of her presence in her apartments, he sent word that he was in readiness to be at her commands.

"Roleau," she said to him when they met, "listen. We have still more to do. There is still another journey across the desert"

"Whither, excellenza?" inquired Roleau.

"To the hunting lodge of the Count Sachio—the same place where you and I took the part of two horse thieves, Roleau!"

A few moments later the two, once more provided with a speedy motor car, were on their way down the avenues of the capital

"I think it might be well to drive past the two palaces," said Kitty Gras "We might pick up some news there First, let us go to the palace of Count Frederick—perhaps he is not out this early"

But, early though it was, Count Frederick was astir was indeed ready for the street apparently, as was also his guest, Count Sachio. Even as Kitty's car swept by the palace front they saw the count and Sachio step into their own car, which waited for them.

"Quick!" said Kitty, sinking back deeper in the seat that she might not be observed "Drive around the block. Don't let them see me" She motioned also to Roleau to conceal himself as best he might. Their own car, swinging around the corner, gave way for the vehicle of Count Frederick, which sped on down the street.

Once more, still undaunted Kitty directed her own car to pass around the block and stop in front of Count Frederick's palace. This was done in the nick of time; for now, as they passed at lower speed, in order to have time for such examination as they cared to make of the exterior the, saw a man in some sort of official uniform walking from the front down the driveway for the side entrance of the great building

"Stop!" cried Kitty to Roleau—"I know that man—that is a friend of Sachio' I saw the two of them together last night It was to him Sachio showed the coin I heard him tell this man where the missing half was Roleau that man has gone to get Count Frederick's half of the coin!"

"Certainly, excellenza," said the stolid Roleau. 'Count Sachio also means to put this and that together, does he not? What can we do? Is your excellency game to try one more entrance into Count Frederick's house?"

'Yes" said Kitty. "Come—let us see if we can trace where this man is going."

Once more these two presented themselves at the door of Count Frederick's abode, and were admitted without question

The two passed without detention through the main hall to the passage way which Kitty knew so well They followed down this narrow hall, suspecting that the destination of the man whom they had seen about to enter was none less than Count Frederick's little bedchamber.

Their suspicion was correct Even As they approached they heard some one in the room who had arrived before themselves. Roleau followed closely by Kitty, stepped up to the door—peered in, and gave one mighty bound.

In the powerful hands of Roleau, the stranger, taken by surprise, was helpless. Roleau clapped a hand over his mouth, another to his throat, and held him until he himself made the sign of submission 'Silence!" hissed Roleau. "Don't move—one word of alarm and I will end you!"

"What are you doing here?" demanded Kitty virtuously—"what do you seek—tell me!"

The man, gore sullen now, looked from one to the other, and knowing well enough what failure would mean for him, refused to speak "Well whatever it was," said he at length, "I have not found it At least, you came too soon"

"I will tell you, excellenza," said Roleau at length "It will do us no special good to have him join yonder party of whom we know. I will tie him up, if your excellency will allow me"

Accordingly he did bind the traitorous official of Grahoffen neck and crop

'Quick' said Kitty. Stealing away silently they left the door locked and took with them the key.

CHAPTER XVII.

At Count Sachio's Lodge.

Such speed did Roleau manage to get out of his own car that Kitty and he arrived at the hunting lodge of Count Sachio well in advance of all others bound thither that eventful morning.

Kitty and Roleau moved about very much as they pleased after their entry It pleased them best to hide themselves in a small room adjacent to the main hall where they fancied the main events of the day would perhaps find their end A door and window made connection between these two rooms, and behind the curtains in the smaller room they fancied they could be sufficiently concealed

But there were others who had an interest in the events to occur in the hunting lodge of Count Sachio that morning. The tangled skein of the mysterious coin was expanding, drawing in yet others. Hardly had Kitty and Roleau secreted themselves before they heard footfalls under the window of the gallery which ran along that side of the chalet. They wondered who might be the author and what his purpose.

It was somewhat later before they heard the mingling of voices and the sound of footfalls.

"Rudolph!" exclaimed Count Sachio. "Why has he not come? What has gone wrong?"

But none could explain to him why Rudolph had not arrived—nor at the time did either Kitty of Roleau know who or what Rudolph might be—although, as a matter of fact, it was he whom they themselves had left tied hand and foot in Count Frederick's palace. Nor could any of these present know that before this time Count Frederick himself, returning to his palace, had found yonder intruder, bound and left helpless, in his own private apartment. The man had made such excuses as he could by declaring that he had been robbed and thrown in the room by a ruffian, assisted by a beautiful woman. And Count Frederick, finding on the floor of his own apartment a tiny handkerchief, had needed scarce more than one guess as to who that young woman had been

But as to all these side scenes which had been enacted, Count Sachio was altogether ignorant. Wherefore he now walked up and down, now exclaiming his own doubts His irritation was obvious enough to Kitty as she peered through the veiled curtain and strained her ears to learn what he was saying.

Even as she stood intent on what was going on in the main room, Roleau close at her side, also absorbed—the author of the stealthy footfalls on the gallery below the window crept silently up and looked in upon them as they watched—a spy upon those who in turn spied upon others

"So, she is not alone!" he whispered to himself. "That man with her will make a different proposition Between them, they will take away from Count Sachio what I want for myself!"

He slipped in now from the gallery, through the open window. Stealthy as a cat, he crept up inch by inch upon the two watchers.

"I tell you," cried out Count Sachio, crashing his fist down upon the table, 'there is no such thing as explaining a thing like this! This failure can never be justified I sent Rudolph to get the coin—he knew where it was—he was not suspected by anyone—I told him precisely what to do Has he done it? No. And here we wait. It is something I shall not forget"

These loud words caught Kitty's attention. She pressed forward eagerly, her figure still half shrouded. Her own senses, strained as they were to catch what was going on in the main room, were less regardful of what was going on immediately about her.

The silent man who had spied upon them crept inch by inch toward them Slowly, deliberately, he raised his right hand above the unsuspecting girl. In that hand he held poised a murderous looking blade

The Record in Monessen is a Unique One

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ills and is looking for an effective kidney medicine, better depend on the remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills have given great satisfaction in such cases. Monessen citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

H. R. Wilbur, 131 McKee avenue, Monessen, says: "I contracted a heavy cold which affected my kidneys. My back was sore and lame all the time and I had to have help to turn in bed. My whole body was like a board. I often had to have somebody dress me. Shooting pains darted through my body and I could not do my work. My body became bloated. The secretions were profuse in passage and contained sediment. I had dizzy spells and hot flashes, and I was miserable in every way. I doctored for years but didn't improve. The first box of Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me and two boxes practically cured me. Now and then I take Doan's Kidney Pills as a tonic, and give them credit for keeping me well."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Wilbur had. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.
